1. Title of the Best Practice:

Monthly Assembly speech on Special Topics – A Best Practice for Student Development

Objective:
To give all students the same special topic every month during the assembly so that they can express their ideas, share knowledge, and improve their confidence, communication, and thinking skills.

The Context:
This practice was introduced to encourage students to participate actively in assemblies and to improve their speaking abilities. Many students hesitate to speak in public, so this activity helps them overcome stage fear and develop a positive learning attitude.

The Practice:
Every month, a special topic is selected and announced to all students.
Students prepare short speeches, poems, or presentations based on the topic and present them during the morning assembly. Faculty members guide them in selecting information and improving their presentation skills. This activity promotes learning, creativity, and communication in a friendly environment.

Evidence of Success:
Students show improved confidence and communication skills. Increased participation in assembly activities. Positive feedback from teachers and students. Students become more aware and knowledgeable about various topics.

Problems Encountered:
Some students feel shy or nervous to speak in front of others. Time management during assembly sessions can be difficult. Need for regular motivation and practice to involve all students.

Resources Required:
Microphone and sound system for assembly. Practical Guidance and support from faculty members. Reference materials, posters, and charts for presentations.

Best Practice – 2: One Rupee Bank Scheme -A Ray of Hope for Poor Students

Objectives:

1. To help poor and meritorious students who face financial problems.
2. To make sure that no student's education or health suffers due to lack of money.
3. To build a habit of sharing and caring among teachers, staff, students, parents, and alumni.
4. To promote social responsibility and teamwork in the college.

The Practice: The practice began at Tunga Mahavidyalaya with a simple yet inspiring idea each person contributes one rupee per day. Teachers, students, non-teaching staff, parents, and alumni all participate actively in the collection process. The money collected is deposited into a common fund called the One Rupee Bank. This fund is then utilized to pay the fees of poor and deserving students, provide emergency medical and health assistance, and support students facing urgent financial difficulties. A committee is formed to manage the fund, ensuring fair identification of genuine beneficiaries and maintaining transparency in all operations.

Evidence of Success:

Many students who were at risk of discontinuing their studies due to financial hardship were able to continue their education. Several students received timely medical and financial assistance. Moreover, the initiative fostered a strong sense of unity, compassion, and social awareness among the college community. Its success has also encouraged other institutions to adopt similar practices, making it a model initiative for student welfare.

Problems Encountered:

Despite its success, the scheme initially faced a few challenges. Regular collection of one-rupee contributions was difficult in the beginning, and some members were slow to participate

Resources Required:
Voluntary contribution of one rupee per person per day. Cooperation and involvement of all stakeholders
